

Sharing Books Without Getting Upset

I saw my friend reading a book I liked.

I felt a little upset because I wanted it too.

I took a deep breath and thought about what to do.

I remembered I could ask nicely.

I walked over to my friend.

I said, "Can I read with you?"

My friend smiled and said, "Sure!"

I felt happy because I asked nicely.

We turned the pages together.

We talked about the pictures we saw.

When my friend finished, it was my turn.

I said, "Thank you for sharing."

My friend said, "You're welcome!"

I felt proud because we shared the book.

Sharing made both of us happy.

Next time, I will ask to share again.
