

One day, my class was talking about our favorite animals. I said I liked tigers the most, but my friend said they liked dolphins

I wanted to say that tigers are better than dolphins, but I remembered that everyone can have different opinions, and that's okay

An opinion is how someone feels or what they think about something. It's not always the same as what I think

When someone shares their opinion, I can listen carefully and try to understand their point of view

Even if I don't agree, I can say, 'That's interesting!' or, 'I see why you like that'

If I disagree, I can explain my opinion politely. I might say, 'I like tigers because they're strong and fast'

It's important to use kind words and not argue when someone has a different opinion

If someone disagrees with me, I can take a deep breath and remind myself that it's okay to think differently

I can ask questions to learn more about their opinion, like, ‘Why do you like dolphins so much?’

When I respect someone’s opinion, it shows that I care about their feelings and ideas

It's okay to like different things because everyone has their own thoughts and experiences

Respecting others' opinions helps us learn new things and make our friendships stronger

If I forget to respect someone's opinion, I can say, 'I'm sorry. I didn't mean to hurt your feelings'

At home, I can practice respecting opinions by asking my family about their favorite things

Now I know that respecting others' opinions is a kind way to show that I care about their thoughts and feelings

When I respect opinions, I make new friends and learn exciting things from others

Vocabulary

- Opinion

A: What someone thinks or feels about something

B: A fact that is always true

- Respect

A: Ignoring what others think

B: Treating others with kindness and understanding

- Agree

A: To always think differently

B: To share the same opinion as someone else

- Disagree

A: To have a different opinion

B: To never talk to someone

- Kind Words

A: Words that make others feel bad

B: Polite and thoughtful things we say to others

Spellings

A: Favorite

B: Favoritte

A: Friend

B: Freind

A: Everyone

B: Averyone

A: Diffrant

B: Different

A: Opinion

B: Openion

A: Agree

B: Agrie

A: Desagree

B: Disagree

A: Rispect

B: Respect

Comprehension

- What is an opinion?
A: Something someone thinks or feels
B: A fact that is always true

- What should you do when someone has a different opinion?
A: Argue and try to change their mind
B: Listen and respect their thoughts

- What can you say if you don't agree with someone?
A: "That's interesting!" or "I see your point"
B: "You're wrong, and I'm right!"

- Why is it important to respect opinions?
A: It helps us prove that we are always right
B: It shows kindness and helps us learn from others

- What should you do if you forget to respect someone's opinion?
A: Ignore it and walk away
B: Say, "I'm sorry for not listening to your idea"

Open-Ended Questions

- How do you feel when someone listens to your opinion and respects it?

- What can you say if you don't agree with someone's opinion but want to be kind?

- Why do you think it's okay for people to have different opinions?

- What would you do if someone didn't respect your opinion?

Creative Activity

- Opinion Poster

Create a poster showing that everyone can have their own favorite things. Draw pictures of favorite animals, foods, or colors with the caption, "We can all like different things!"

- Opinion Journal

Ask the child to write or draw one of their opinions (e.g., their favorite toy) and a friend's opinion (e.g., their friend's favorite toy)

Role-Play Activity

- Scenario 1

Pretend the child and a friend are discussing their favorite games. Practice listening and saying, "That's interesting!" or "I see why you like that"

- Scenario 2

Act out a situation where someone says, "I think rainy days are the best!" Practice responding politely with, "I like sunny days, but I understand why you like rain"

- Scenario 3

Pretend someone interrupts or argues about an opinion. Practice staying calm and saying, "We can both have our own favorites"